This four story, flat roofed building of painted running bond brick has an original cast iron shop front. This shop front consists of six bays separated by paneled pilasters ornamented with Corinthian capitals and rococo appliques. The two end pilasters and the central one are wider than the other four. The three bays from the left serves as the entrance with a pair of glass and wood doors. The shop windows have been removed. Each bay had a transom of three panes (3 are removed). A cornice with dentils and modillions crowns the first floor.

The upper floors each feature four evenly spaced six-over-six windows with stone sills and gauged brick lintels. Protruding bricks suggests a simple dentiled cornice at the roofline.
